OUR CITIZENSHIP POLICY RESENTED BY EUROPEANS

A member of the bureau of immigration, asked this morning as to why Section 8 was introduced into Act 123 of the last Legislature, by virtue of which the department was constituted, and which authorizes the board as trustees, agents or otherwise, to receive, hold and dispose of private lands, and to make contracts and do all other acts necessary or proper for the purpose of facilitating the occupation and settlement of such other lands, said:

"The press of Spain and Portugal has been very bitter in its comments on attempts on the part of immigration bodies to get subjects of these countries to deny their citizenship in favor of citizenship in other countries. Its main objection to emigration was that it meant, in many cases, the ultimate loss of citizens of the fatherland.

"Now, the first question that is asked of our agents is what chance there is of acquiring land in Hawaii. As things were, there was only public land to be obtained on terms agreeable to the average immigrant and to take up this land it is necessary to become a citizen of the United States. We couldn't, therefore, talk government land to prospective immigrants.

"The insertion of Section 8 will enable our agents to talk land without mentioning public lands. This was why the section was framed and not through any desire on the part of the board to absorb any new functions, but rather to facilitate in the getting of immigrants.

"The board is also authorized to bring about, where possible, the opening of large tracts of private land in the interest of immigrants, and its agents are now in the position of being able to promise something in the land line, the acquisition of which will necessitate no change of citizenship nor create friction among the officials of the countries concerned."

Silva to Go Again.

M. A. Silva, of the Bureau of Immigration, returned this morning from a trip to the islands of Hawaii and Maui, where he inspected the immigrants who recently arrived by the S. S. Orteric.

His report will be presented to the board at its next meeting, and Dr. Victor Clark stated this morning that no information in the matter would be available until then.

It is probable that Mr. Silva will make another trip to Europe in the not distant future.

PETERS ALMOST WEPT IN COURT; HUMPHREYS PRODUCED HANDKERCHIEF

Deputy City and County Attorney A. M. Brown desires a reputation for courtesy, judging by the suavity with which he accedes to requests made by opposing counsel in the police court, but sometimes his efforts are not appreciated. Such was the case this morning, though the courtesy of the prosecuting attorney almost brought tears to the eyes of Attorney Peters, at least so Peters said, but Judge Humphreys' handkerchief was perfectly dry after he had wiped the alleged tears from Peters' eyes.

Brown called the case of Hironaki, who is accused of a criminal assault on a young girl, and announced that the matter had been investigated by the grand jury and an indictment found against the defendant. He then asked that a nolle prosequi be entered.

The led Peters to ask: "Where is the defendant?" to which Brown responded: "Up at the circuit court."

Peters detailed to the court the trouble he had been put to by the prosecution to locate his client. Last Saturday Peters went to the police court expecting to find his client there, but found him not. He was informed that he was at the county jail and with commendable celerity Peters hied himself to that habitat. But still Hironaki was not; he had just had a hurry-up call to the county attorney's office and was then on his way to the police court. And so the chase went on.

Here Brown interjected that he was sorry Peters had so much trouble finding his client, but the sorrow of the county attorney did not appease the wrathful attorney, who expressed himself as thinking that a little courtesy was due counsel for the defense.

The vehemence which Peters introduced into his remarks amused Brown, around whose lips a smile hovered as he genially explained to all and sundry that as a courtesy to defending counsel he had called the Hironaki case out of its order to obviate the necessity of counsel sitting in court for an hour to await it being called.

That was sufficient, and as Peters turned to leave the court-room he remarked that to listen to the recital of such courtesy was almost enough to bring tears to his eyes, whereupon

Judge Dole A Dinner Guest Of Lord Chief Justice Of England

"The goose hangs high; the weather is good and we are having a fine time," writes Judge Stanford B. Dole, under date of London, May 25th. Judge Dole adds that he has been to a number of interesting functions and that the Lord Chief Justice of England, Lord Alverstone, has been most kind and cordial to him, but Mrs. Dole in a letter goes into more details. She relates that Judge Dole was guest at a dinner, at which Lord Alverstone and about two hundred others were present, Judge Dole being accorded a seat on the right hand side of the host, Lord Alverstone. Judge Dole enjoyed the dinner very much, and also the company of the host. As he left the room, after dinner, one of the servants put into his hand a beautiful box full of candy for Mrs. Dole, an act which Mrs. Dole and the judge cordially appreciated.

Judge Dole was also at the Colonial Dinner, as the guest of Mr. Defries, Lord Roberts presiding. At this dinner also there were upwards of 200 prominent people present. The judge was also entertained to luncheon by Mr. Henderson, an old friend of his, who married Miss May, a niece of Henry May. Mr. Henderson travelled a long way from the country to see Judge Dole.

While Judge Dole was in London, most of the Honolulu people who are in England, called to pay their respects to him among them being: Harry Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Waterhouse, J. M. Dowsett and Sam Parker and his son, Princess Kalaniana'ole also called on Mrs. Dole.

The foregoing items from the letters to hand indicate that Judge Dole is being well received in London, and that Honolulu is not being kept in the background.

NEW MAN COMING FOR SOCIAL DEPARTMENT OF THE Y. M. C. A.

In the person of A. T. Wisdom, who is due here in September next to take the control of the social department of the Y. M. C. A., Paul Super opines that the organization has secured a man who is in every way qualified for the position and one who will make good in every sense of the word. Wisdom's past record is an admirable one; he comes very highly recommended and much is expected of the department which he will direct. "Wiz" comes from Portland, Ore., where he is a member of the Baptist church. He was finally engaged by Mr. Larimer in Oakland, Cal., but he has been in negotiation with the Y. M. C. A. for

BOYS AT LAHAINALUNA MAKE MONEY WHILE BEING EDUCATED

C. A. MacDonald, principal of Lahainaluna school, stated this morning that the crop of cane grown on the thirty-five acres of land and looked after by the boys of the school, had netted $4850. This was the first crop, and it is expected that the returns from the ratoon crop will be even larger. The boys who raised the cane and did everything in connection with its career to the mill, with the exception of the cutting, number 107.

The boys would have done the cutting but for the fact that the Pioneer mill had to be kept going and it took more men to do this than the school had boys.

"The experiment has proved a success," said Mr. MacDonald. "It has furnished the boys with industrial work of a practical nature and the money realized can only be used for school purposes. Land has been utilized which would otherwise have lain idle or been used as pasture land.

Boys Learning Trades.

"We are doing a great deal of back-smithing work for the plantation and the boys are becoming very proficient. They learn their work both in the field and at the forge thoroughly and in time perform it almost by instinct. There is a great deal more value in this regular work than in exercise work, such as making a single link or turning out a single bolt, which, after all, is only a process.

"The work the boys are doing is peculiar to the land in which they will have to make a living, and it is work for which, properly done, there will always be a demand. The same may be said of printing, of which the boys do a great deal. We print and publish 'Hawaii's Young People,' 2700 copies ten months in the year, and this little book is used as a supplementary reader by the schools of the Territory.

"Thirty boys are employed on the school grounds, and they built a teacher's cottage recently at a cost to the government of about $1000, where a contractor would have charged $2500. Some of the boys are going to build another during their vacation, and after the vacation a third will be built.

"We are also building a new dining hall, the present one having been in use since 1832. This year we celebrated our eightieth closing."

Lahainaluna school was founded in 1831 by the American Board of Missions and was taken over by the government in 1849, and has been maintained by the government ever since.

It has always been a favorite school among the Hawaiians and the majority of Hawaiians who have attained distinction in the past received their education and training there.

some time, and by his letters and references had impressed the local board with his fitness for the billet. Wisdom was assistant manager for the Baltimore Cafe in Portland some time ago, and then took over the assistant management of the Y. M. C. A. Cafe in Portland, afterwards moving down to Oakland Y. M. C. A. to take over charge of the social privileges of that organization. Larimer went to see "Wiz" and speaks very highly of the man. He engaged him right on the spot, remarking in a letter to Paul Super that "Wisdom knew" is business from

A to Z. Wisdom is one of the crack bowlers of Oakland, thoroughly understands the promotion of bowling and is also an excellent pool player, capabilities which will stand him in good stead here in Honolulu. He is twenty-five years of age and has an inexhaustible supply of energy. In fact "he would make electric current turn green with envy when he gets a hustle on," adds Larimer. Judging from the accounts which have reached Super of Wisdom he is just the man for the job, and a welcome addition to Honolulu.
